That little bundle of pulchritude which did a lot of the Vandy cheerleading last week-end was one Mary Rose Eskind, a native of Providence, Ky., so the Baird brothers weren't the only Kentuckians helping the Commodore cause.

And while on the subject of cheerleading, those in charge of Wildcat support aren't getting much cooperation from the students. I would place that blame squarely on the upperclassmen who sit around and tell the freshmen to vell, and never open their dignified mouths. I realize that a school can't have everything, but with a football team like this one, I think those old students could strain themselves enough to set an example worth following.

The Sporting Way

By BAXTER MELTON

Only two points separate Kentucky from an undefeated status yet, the Wildcats continue to be snubbed in national football ratings. Why, we don't know, since the 'Cats are a member of one of the toughest loops in the country, annually play big-time football, and this year have presented the best eleven in several Latest information from the "guys who know" place the Big Blue 10th in the SEC. Coach Ab Kirwan's lads have only made two league starts, were nosed out both times by bare 7-6 margins by Georgia and Vanderbilt, regarded as top threats for the title.

Nation-wide, the Kentuckians are scarcely mentioned by the fellows who play the game on paper. That furnishes a good ha-ha, since Georgia, ranked as No. 2 in the country, trailed Kirwan's Kats for 56 minutes before Frankie Sinkwich's run and Leo Costa's toe gave the Bulldogs a 7-6 edge.

Bouquets are being passed out to starting members of the 'Cat eleven, but we'd like to mention a guy who doesn't make headlines. His name-Randall Hammer.

As a reserve Hammer hasn't seen much service so far, but kept on trying. Two weeks ago, in practice, the Tompkinsville ball-toter received a broken shoulder, his second in two years.

After his injury Hammer didn't take things easy, as would be expected. Each afternoon's practice saw him in uniform, running around the field to keep in shape, tossing the pigskin with his good left arm, kicking, and doing other things to keep in practice. This week's practice produced the thing that marked him as an all-right guy. He even ran through plays with his mates and blocked, with his right arm still helpless.

That's the spirit that is making Kentucky a football power

COLONEL Of The Week

Jim Crowley

This week's "Colonel of the Week" goes to Jim Crowley, agriculture senior from Butler.

Jim is president of Alpha Zeta, honorary agriculture fraternity; president of Lamp and Cross, honorary senior men's fraternity; and president of Suky. campus pep club.

He is also treasurer of the Alpha Gamma Rho social fraternity, president of the Agriculture Council, and a member of O. D. K.

To show our appreciation of these achievements we want to invite you to come in and enjoy any two of our delicious meals
